Excerpt from Address Delivered at the Sixteenth Anniversary of the Presbyterian Hospital: In the West Presbyterian Church, December 14, 1884 Mohammed and all prophets of religion, all priests of science, all doctors of philosophy, all benefactors of mankind, must still go to Mount Sinai. They must march past it, salute it, and stand at attention, until, from its solemn top, encircled with fire and smoke, they receive orders for the line of march to the Promised Land. No modern engineering has been able to build a highway for the nations of the earth, that cut off Mount Sinai, and left it forsaken, forgotten, out of use. Nay, there is no highway to any Promised Land of civilization and progress, of public welfare and private worth, that does not still run hard by Sinai. Moses survives, Mount Sinai has not ceased to burn, and the decalogue still powerfully affects the destinies of mankind. But Mount Sinai gives us no hospital. In the flight from Egypt, woe to the foot-sore, woe to the exhausted, woe to the sunstruck Israelite. There was no ambulance corps, no field hospital, no surgeon and stretcher-bearers. He perished in the wilderness, a carcase that fell by the way; for only the well kept up on the march, only the strong survived to enter the Promised Land. We are debtors to the Jews. The Monotheistic faith, a spiritual worship, a Sabbath Day, the sacredness of human life, the family, enduring laws, we owe to the Jews, but not the hospital. Drive the lepers out of the city, unpitied and uncared for. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at This...
